

During the summer vacation, I actively took on more household activities. Every morning, I started by preparing breakfast for everyone, which was a delightful way to begin the day. Afterwards, I tackled cleaning tasks including sweeping, mopping and doing laundry.

The experiences have been truly rewarding. I felt a deep sense of accomplishment. What's more, not only has it strengthened my family bond, but also made our home a more comfortable place. Tiring as these activities were, they taught me the value of labour and responsibility.
